DR. JOHN NUZUM IS CALLED DISCOVERER OF PARALYSIS GERM

Son of Janesville Physician Makes Claim to $25,000 Prize Offered

Dr. John Nuzum, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Nuzum of this city, who is a physician at Cook county hospital at Chicago, has discovered the germ of infantile paralysis and will lay claim to the $25,000 prize offered to the discoverer by R. T. Crane, Jr., Warden Clayton F. Smith of the Cook county institution, has made the following statement relative to the discovery:

"A single instance of the value of the research work done at the county hospital, may be cited in the discovery recently by the pathological department of this germ that causes infantile paralysis.

"It is just a source of great pride and satisfaction to the medical staff of the county hospital with its make-shift laboratory was the first of many institutions in the land conducting similar investigations to discover the cause of this terrible malady.

"The doctors who made this discovery are working to produce a serum that will prove a specific for the cure of the mysterious disease. If they are successful, their achievements will rank among the most notable in the history of medicine and be of the greatest value to mankind.

"Dr. Nuzum is now working in one of the small laboratories at the hospital trying to discover a cure for the disease. When asked who first discovered the germ he replied:

"Dr. Nuzum, who worked with me at times, but not at that particular time.

"Another claimant for the honor of being first is Dr. Edward C. Rosenow, head of the bacteriological department of the Mayo foundation at Rochester, Minn.

"Still another is Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute, New York.

"So far as the medical profession is concerned," said Dr. Nuzum last night, "priority, if it is a question, is to be decided by publication first in the Journal of American Medicine. My article announcing the discovery and isolation of the germ appeared in the October issue.

"The same issue carried an article by Dr. Rosenow. So I suppose that if there were a prize for being the first to discover the germ it would have to be divided between us.

"But the prize is for being the first to discover the cure. This must be a cure now. Within the next few days I hope to be able to announce that it is a success.

"Dates of Other Discoveries.

"The Flexner discovery was first made public in dispatches from New York on Oct. 2. The Rosenow discovery was announced in dispatches from Rochester on Dec. 2. In this case the germs were obtained from the tonsils instead of the spinal cord fluids.

"I will be glad to contribute $25,000 to the individual who may offer the best cure or solution of this great disease within the next year. This is the promise of a majority vote of the trustees of the American Medical Association."

"The announcement was made the first week of the year from the Crane summer home in New Hampshire.

Sheep and lambs met with an active call at 10@25c gain over last week's close. Best lambs $13.20 or 50c above a week ago and $2.50 higher than low time in November.

Yesterday's cattle market after a strong start closed weak with instances of 10@25c decline. Best beefs were sold at $12.50. A year ago fancy yearlings made $11.60, a record to that date.

Receipts for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 41,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep against 4,731 cattle, 30,803 hogs and 12,559 sheep a year ago.

RECEPTION TO NEW BOYS' SECRETARY

All Boy Members of the Y. M. C. A. Invited to Big Reception at the Y. M. C. A. Tomorrow Evening.

In honor of the new boy's secretary at the Y. M. C. A., all members of the boys' department are invited to a reception which will be tendered Mr. Feggin, the new secretary, and Mr. Richards, who has served in this position for the past few months. The reception will start at seven o'clock sharp and will last until about nine; at half past eight refreshments will be served. Officials at the "Y" are planning an interesting program of stunts for the evening.

Every boy member of the association is expected to be present at this affair in order to get acquainted with the new secretary.

Members of the employed boys' class met last night to elect captains of the four basketball teams which will carry on a tournament in that group throughout the winter. The following boys were selected to pilot teams: Lester Hallett, William Weber, Harold Ryan and Chester Barriage. The class will divide up into teams and a league schedule for the entire season arranged.

The employed boys have also formed a leaders' class, which will meet with the senior leaders on Thursday evenings. In this way it is hoped to develop a few of the employed boys to such an extent that they will be able to take charge of squads in their group in the gym work.

Because of the meeting of the Twilight club which is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, the regular meeting of the senior class will be postponed until Friday evening. The Hy-Y club will hold its weekly meeting on Thursday evening instead of tonight.

TIME FOR CHRISTMAS GIVING IS AT HAND

Associated Charities Sends Out Second Call In Which New Toys Are Asked For.

Efforts are being made by several organizations in this city, under the Associated Charities, to make sure that Christmas is a happy day for every family in Janesville. To that end the Associated Charities today sent out its second appeal to the citizens of Janesville to assist in the cause. Money contributions will be appreciated as well as donations of merchandise, but the second appeal concerns especially the boys and girls whose hearts will be made glad by one or two small gifts of toys. The society urges gifts of new toys, which may be left at the Gazette office, where they will be sorted and arranged for distribution at the proper time. Lists of families to be visited will be carefully compiled, so that there will be no duplication of special needs and duplications will be avoided. At the annual meeting of the Associated Charities this afternoon the plans for the Christmas campaign were discussed and carefully outlined.

Spent Sunday Here: Corporal Harry Chamberlain of Co. B, Third Wisconsin Infantry, which is now at Fort Sheridan waiting to be mustered out of the United States service, spent Sunday the guest of his father, Sheriff Dell Chamberlain in this city. Corporal Chamberlain enlisted in the La Crosse company of the third regiment when the call to the colors came early last summer and has been stationed at the Mexican border since then. The regiment will be mustered out Thursday of this week and returned to their home towns.

ACROSS SEA FLIGHT IS PLAN PROPOSED BY DARING AIRMEN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
New York, Dec. 12.—Lieutenant Kjell Nyegaard of the French flying corps and Captain Hugo Sundstedt, the famous Swedish flyer, have arrived here from France, bent on making a trans-Atlantic flight in an airplane next spring.

Nyegaard is one of the well known French army birdmen and among his encounters was one with Boelke, in the air over the western front. Neither could gain enough advantage over the other to fire a shot. They circled about Nyegaard above the German, for twenty minutes and, as the former said:

Boelke beckoned to me with his hand to come down and I beckoned to him to come up. It was a tie and we both waved a farewell and parted.

(Flew 1,250 Miles.)
Captain Sundstedt is the chief pilot aviator of the Swedish navy, and he flew 1,250 miles from Paris to Stockholm in nineteen hours in July, 1914, stopping only at Bremen. Before that he had flown from Paris to London, England, and back in a Henri Farman biplane with a passenger, for which the French Aero club gave him a gold pilot.

Nyegaard's specialty is handling the aeroplane in pursuit, which means machine gun dueling. "While the captain is a long distance flyer,"

Both have wanted to make the attempt to cross the Atlantic for some time and Nyegaard, who is a Norwegian and the nephew of the Norwegian ambassador to France, obtained his discharge from the French flying corps in order to come here and try it. But before Nyegaard left he promised his wife, considered by many the most beautiful actress in Paris and a creator of Parisian styles, that he would take her with him on the cross-ocean flight. She has flown with him many times and will join him here in a few weeks.

The aviators will have a machine built here this winter large enough for four passengers, as a mechanic will be taken along. They plan to start at Newfoundland and make the Irish coast in twenty hours. Both are bubbling over with confidence in their project. Their craft will be larger than the American type. They will consult with Glen H. Curtis in a few days.

New Airplane Coming.
In the meantime Nyegaard may bring from France a 16-horsepower Poirer biplane in which he has repeatedly flown 200 kilometres an hour. These little craft, none of which has been seen here, have a wing spread of only 5.13 metres. They are now used by the French flyers for fast scouting duty.

Lieutenant Nyegaard, who is only twenty-three years old, at the beginning of the war enlisted in the foreign legion and was wounded in the right forearm at Dixmude. When the wound healed he was made commander of a ski detachment in the Vosges and was wounded in the left knee. Then he joined the flying corps and had several accidents, the worst being when his gasoline tank burst as he was 6,000 feet up. He managed to bring the biplane down, but could not control its direction when it neared the ground and a wing bit a tree. He could not walk for seven months. Captain Sundstedt, who is thirty years old, flew for two years in a Swedish navy hydro-aeroplane. He has invented several appliances for

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come airplanes and is the proud possessor of No. 9 among the cards issued to international flyers in Europe. Most of the present flyers at the front have cards numbered up in the thousands.

HEMMING AT CENTER STARS IN BADGER WIN

Janesville Boy Gets Six Baskets and Three Free Throws—Seen as Pivotal Figure on Team.

Wisconsin's basketball quintet got away to a whirlwind start on its 1916-17 schedule at the varsity gym at Madison Saturday night with a 58 to 17 victory over the Beloit college five. The score, lopsided as it is, does not indicate the relative strength of the two teams, for had the Badgers played throughout the entire game as they did in the first few minutes, the score would have been above the hundred mark.

Vic Hemming of this city, at center, in his first game in a Cardinal suit, showed up to advantage. Alwood of Illinois is the only man Madison critics fear will have the jump on "Vic." He tossed six baskets from the field. Captain Lewis threw ten. Hemming counted three times out of seven trials at foul throws. He was later changed to guard and still later retired from the game because of personal fouls. We rather think that was because of the lad's playing the Lakota Cardinal style of game so long. McIntosh of Edgerton, forward, found it easy to elude the Beloit guards. He got five baskets.

FRANCES INGRAM IN DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

Third Offering of the Apollo Club Proved Most Delightful Musical Event of the Season.

Frances Ingram, a contralto of rare voice, with a wonderful range of expression, gave one of the most delightful concerts of the season at Library Hall Monday evening before an audience composed of members of the Apollo club and their invited guests. The little hall was far too small for the concert, and it is unfortunate that the Apollo club had not made arrangements for a larger and more commodious room, where the general public could have been permitted to attend and enjoy the wonderful songs of the artist.

The bringing of such an artist as Miss Ingram to Janesville should mean a rare treat to music lovers, and doubtless many would have availed themselves of the opportunity had they been given a chance to attend a semi-public or public concert. In many cities musical organizations foster the love of the true music by holding public concerts most successfully, and it is unfortunate that Janesville is not in a position to do likewise.

Perhaps the rendition of "I Think When I Hear That Sweet Story of Old" was the most striking of her various numbers. It was given as a final encore by request. The various selections were most carefully chosen from French, Italian, German, English and Scotch composers, and were most appropriate, showing the wonderful voice of Miss Ingram to its best advantage. "The Cradle Song" by Kreisler, was most expressively rendered, as was the "Aria From Mignon," by Ambrose Thomas. "Oh Charley Is My Darling," an old Scotch song, was of a bit different variety, but most pleasing.

Miss King of Chicago, a young pianist of rising prominence, played the accompaniments, and showed excellent technique, adding Miss Ingram, materially in the success that met her efforts to please the audience. Miss Ingram appears with Geraldine Farrar in her Chicago engagements, and her association with this noted singer is evidenced by Miss Ingram's mannerisms, gowns and wonderful expression, which add to the delight of her marvelous voice.

WHILE CHANGING REELS

Table Manners.
Table manners are what other people seem to lack while at their food. It is surprising how awkward other people are in handling knives and forks, even when they've had lots of practice. The Russians are said to have the most beards and the fewest table manners of any other people. There has been great improvement in table manners within recent years. This is largely due to the decline of whiskers and the greater vogue of thick soup. As the price of food advances eating is becoming more of a ceremonial. Within a few more years a soft-boiled egg will be eaten each evening, with Wednesday matinees.

by a few of our most celebrated soft-boiled egg-eaters on tour. In the meantime the humblest and least of us with care and practice may learn to eat a soft-boiled egg so enchantingly as to gain national honor and repute.

MAN OVERBOARD.
Robert Fulton had just finished constructing his justly famous steamboat, and was standing on the pier looking proudly at the clumsy creature and whistling softly to himself. (See Olive Grape's "What Famous Men Did When Alone.")

"Hurry up," spoke up a squeaky voice at his elbow. It was W. Everlasting Doubter, Fulton's pest, some neighbor. (See Lydia Sprout's "Little Known Neighbors of the Great.")

"Is this the new steamboat I hear so much about?" Doubter went on. "That's the steamboat," replied Fulton.

"And do you really expect it to go?" queried Doubter.

"You actually expect people to trust their lives in it?"

"I do."

"Don't you think," said Doubter solemnly, "that if men were intended to travel on water, they would have been given webbed feet, like ducks?"

"Excuse me for a moment," said Fulton. And he grabbed Doubter by one ear and the seat of one pant and flung him into forty feet of water.

The Instrument of Quality SONORA Clear As A Bell

The highest class talking machine in the world.

It's easy enough to say "This is the best." It's something to prove it. Sonora not merely substantiates its claim of being the Peerless Phonograph by pointing to its winning of the highest score for tone quality at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, but it invites the most critical comparison, point by point. You will make no mistake when you purchase the Sonora, for it stands in a class alone.

See that there is a Sonora in your home for Christmas. Now is the time to buy while stock is complete.

SAFETY FIRST.

On Monday evening at Library hall the capacity of the room was taxed to its fullest capacity by the music-lovers who had come to enjoy the voice of the noted singer. The thought comes, supposing a fire had started in the basement or lower floor of the library, how many of that audience would have escaped alive and uninjured? What protection is there from a panic? What means of escape is offered to those who might be in the upper floor? A narrow, winding stairway, down more steps and onto the street. Think, if that stairway should become clogged with human beings struggling to escape. What would happen? Would the story of the Iroquois theatre disaster be repeated? Where are the fire escapes provided by law to be placed on buildings where the upper floors are used for meeting places? Whose duty is it to see that such escapes be erected and maintained? It would appear that someone was derelict in their duty. It would look as though the library board should insist upon adequate provision being made for the safety of the public. If they permit the upper floors to be used for gatherings like Monday evening, one would expect the chief of the fire department to demand the law to be obeyed and the city officials to see that it was enforced. True, there is one ladder that must be joined together, lowered carefully to the ground, in the undisciplined portion of the building, but how many do you think could have escaped by the means had a panic or a fire occurred while the hall was crowded? Think, if the stairway was choked by smoke, what would happen then? How would those peoned in the upper floor reach the ground and safety? Safety first is the slogan preached the night and breadth of this country. Why not insist that it be looked to at home first? Nor is the library the only building that needs attention. There are others and it would not hurt to have a careful inspection made by proper authorities before some disastrous tragedy occurs.

WHY STOP?

If the city officials are in earnest in their attempt to clean up the city of the illicit sale of liquor after hours and on Sundays, why stop with the two cases of Sunday last. They can find plenty of evidence as to other sales if they keep their eyes open and make a few arrests which, if prosecuted, would revoke perhaps a few licenses and also do away with the "blind tigers" that are a disgrace to the city professing to have a Sunday closing ordinance enforced. It is just such action as this demonstrated on Sunday last that makes even the citizen who does not desire a "dry" town stop and consider. True the facts show towns that have been voted dry are honeycombed with just such "joints" as are alleged to exist here, but still the authorities can discover them and stop the sale if they are in the least honest. The majority of the retail liquor dealers closely observe the law but it is an open secret that there are a few, whether favored by chance or by some other source, who continually evade the law to the detriment of the law-abiding license holder who pays five hundred dollars for protection and as a guaranty he will observe the law. The state has been made. Certain police officers have made the statements there were other offenders, for the administration indicate they mean to force them all to observe the law. The only way to do this is to bring them to the bar of justice with sufficient evidence to convict and a city attorney determined not to permit some clever attorney to put one over on him and continue the case until it becomes outlawed. The public demands action and the sooner it is demonstrated by the police department the quicker the confidence in the city administration will be restored. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and vice versa. Play the same fair and there will be no complaint.

WAR AND POLITICS.

"In our military operations on the Mexican border we have received one more object lesson of the fatal consequences of mixing war with politics," says an eastern publication. "The law, tested almost before the ink was dry, designed to federalize the state militia, has proved a costly fiasco, and it is the more to be regretted that much of the cost falls upon individual members of the national guard. But the bill was politics and designed intentionally to increase congressional patronage. The Spanish war, to say nothing of the civil war, was hampered by political influences, with grossly added cost and increased duration. "Rumania's plight again" calls attention to the political mistakes which have cost the allies so dear. The Rumanian politician had to show the people that they were to get something tangible for their money and lives, and with that object in view made the tactical mistake of occupying Transylvania, with its largely Rumanian population, instead of directing its strength to an attack upon the communications of the central powers in Bulgaria. The result has been calamitous and, for the present year at least, irreparable. "At the outbreak of the war, in deference to public opinion, France threw a large force into Alsace, where every soldier should have been sent to the Belgian border. Perhaps this was nearly the most serious mistake of the war, only exceeded by that of the Germans where a spectacular march upon Paris was preferred to the incomparably more valuable operation against the channel ports. The mistakes of the British, due to political considerations, have furnished Germany with her greatest victories. "Although the loss was relatively small, the inadequately equipped expedition into Mesopotamia was typical. But politics demanded something showy of the kind, and the Gallipoli expedition, where the operations of the fleet and the army were not coordinated, was unquestionably popular in England in spite of its unsoundness from a military point of view. An abiding result, among others, is the stalemate at Saloniki. It is to the permanent advantage of the British that their navy has suffered less from political influences which have rendered futile the heroic efforts of her armies.

"Antwerp was another mistake of the first magnitude, and the sins of omission are numberless. Prompt action and co-operation by the allies might have saved Serbia and Montenegro, and cut the German communications with Constantinople. But here again Balkan politics influenced military operations with disastrous results. Italy has had experiences of a similar kind; and perhaps only the campaign against the German African colonies has been practically free from politics and therefore efficiently conducted.

"This does not exhaust the list, but surely the lesson for ourselves should not be lost. Congress is an adept in the art of how not to do it. Perhaps the Hall bill will remain on the statute books to save its sponsor's face. If it does, we have only ourselves to thank."

FOOD BOYCOTTS.

Observers of the effort to promote boycotts of high priced foods have not felt hopeful that much could be done in this way. They have argued that the people are too feeble and disorganized to act as a unit in any such matter. But some of the results of the Thanksgiving turkey sale suggest the contrary. As many householders will recall, turkeys this year were held at an unusually high price. So far as the public can judge, there was no efficient reason for it as far as the production of turkeys is concerned. Expense of raising them may be somewhat higher than previously, but even at that price seemed disproportionate. Apparently the trouble was that commission men and other speculators had secured control of a large part of the supply, and held it for a high price, believing that people would pay it rather than go without the customary Thanksgiving dinner. But people are getting thoroughly mad over the high price question. They are willing to forego their customary habits quite a bit, not merely to save money, but to beat the speculators. And there are a great many substitutes that can be used for any given food. The householder who did not want turkey at the prevailing prices could have mighty good dinner on chicken.

It is just the same on the egg question. A good grade of cold storage eggs is an excellent substitute for the strictly fresh brand. If there is speculation in cold storage brands, the public can use the many patent preparations by which eggs can be bought cheap in spring and summer and put down in one's own cellar. Fish and oysters can be substituted for meats. An enormous range of excellent canned goods can be used very comfortably.

COMMUNITY BUILDING PLAN TO BE GIVEN BY FAMOUS SPEAKER

Noted Community Worker Will Tell of Movement at Celebration on Thursday Evening.

With the approach of the dedicatory ceremonies in honor of the new street lights which have been placed on the downtown streets of this city, more and more people are beginning to realize the significance of this event in the life of Janesville.

Appropriately its importance one member of the Commercial club, who has taken an active part in the arrangement of the affair and who has been instrumental in bringing to Janesville the new lights, said this morning, of the celebration in the Myers opera house on Thursday evening, will be a community building idea. A movement to bring into closer relations with the various forces operating in a city of this size; to put on an equal footing the farmer and the merchant, the plain citizen and the manufacturer, and the benefit of working for a common aim, a better Janesville.

The man secured to launch this idea in a definite way before the entire community is one who has made a life study of the problems confronting a city of this size located in the center of a phenomenally fruitful agricultural area.

Mr. N. J. MacFarland, who has enlisted the aid of all the various elements in his community, has brought about an active and friendly association of the various forces of the city, and has aroused a real civic interest in the citizens of his home, Janesville, Mo., to such an extent that he has made a name for himself throughout the entire country. He is a recognized authority on community building.

While this is the first of the initial event in an effort to start this movement in Janesville, it is perhaps the first time that the people have had an opportunity of hearing just what has been done in other places and what it is possible to accomplish in any town if the citizens go about it in the right spirit. The Commercial club, for instance, has organized a number of activities that have tended toward a broader community idea; these have prepared the way. The evolution of the community has been the result of the address on Thursday evening will serve to crystallize this idea for the people.

The meeting is one to which every member of the community, which includes not only this city, but the entire county, is invited; and from the indications at this time there will be a greater crowd than has ever taken part in a similar gathering before.

In addition to the feature address of the evening by Mr. Witten, Mayor Fathers will speak in behalf of the city, and Mr. O. J. O'Connell, president of the Commercial club, will talk for the Commercial club, telling of the club's activities in community work, and reminding the people of the work of the club in making the lights possible in Janesville.

If the weather permits there will be a street parade in which the Commercial club and the Second Separate Company will take part. The Bower City Band has been secured to furnish music for the entertainment, and with the new lights, the Christmas decorations of the stores and the holiday decorations of the stores and the city, Janesville is due for a celebration that will be long remembered.

Boxing exhibition at rink Thursday.

TOWN OF CENTER CASE ATTRACTS BIG CROWD

Barn Dance Brawl Assault and Battery Action Brings Big Gathering of Township Farmers.

Once against just about every male resident of the town of Center heeded to the Janesville municipal court to hear an action in which they are more interested in than the war in Europe.

The action was the assault and battery case preferred by Theodore Roehl against Julius Guesse, arising out of a barn dance held following a wedding at the township. At 10:30 o'clock exactly fifty-seven farmers from Center and two women occupied the court room gallery.

Roehl, represented by Attorney J. Cunningham, while District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie presented the charges of the case, arising from the night of the fight at the dance, an abusive language action wherein a young town of Center lady makes a prominent young man from there the defendant.

A jury of six sat on the Guesse-Roehl case. They were: Almer Townsend, Robert Hockett, John Tahn, Day, Ray Lloyd and Herman Volkman.

CHICAGO ITALIANS WILL PUT UP BAIL FOR WOMEN AT JAIL

Looked for Either This Afternoon or Tomorrow—Refuse to Eat Anything but Fruit and Pastry.

Moneyed Italians of Chicago were expected here either late today or tomorrow morning to attempt to secure the release of the Palmer murder case women, Mrs. Raffaello Bosco and her daughter, Mrs. Illomena Palmero. The women are still confined to the Rock county jail because of their failure to procure the $2,000 surety demanded by Judge George Grimm for the release of either one or the two.

Friends of the Boscos, they are former residents of Chicago, are those who are to come to Janesville. W. H. Dougherty, who is handling the affairs of the Italian women, is extremely anxious that Mrs. Palmero be released to return to her children. He sought a compromise with the state, but District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie refused to permit the release of the Palmero woman and the keeping in custody of her mother. Both are held under first degree murder charges, the elder woman as an accessory before the fact and her daughter as an accessory after the fact.

Like Jim or Vincenzo Cornevallo, the real murderer, who has already started his term of life imprisonment for the crime, the women have refused to eat. Only a little fruit and a little pie and other delicate pastry are acceptable to the women. They refuse to partake of any solid food, such as meat and vegetables, and also refuse to drink both tea and coffee.

Mrs. Horwood will continue her sale of hand made gifts every afternoon this week at Rathjen's Flower Shop.

ALLEGED GUN TOTER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Baraboo Man, Formerly of Here, Held for Carrying Loaded Revolver—Trial Next Wednesday.

Ray Du Bois, 27, a former partner in the restaurant and candy store at the corner of Milwaukee and Academy streets, was in municipal court this morning and faced charges of carrying concealed weapons, a loaded revolver. He entered a plea of not guilty and was held under $100 bail for trial on Dec. 20, a week from tomorrow.

Du Bois was arrested Saturday at Baraboo and was returned to Janesville last evening by Chief of Police Peter Champion, who made the trip north at noon yesterday. It was only after the chief wrote a personal letter to the Baraboo mayor that the police of that place would arrest and hold the man. Champion repeatedly wrote to the Baraboo police head to take Du Bois, but he refused to do so. Chief Champion knew that Du Bois was there as Baraboo was his former home and information had been received that upon leaving here Du Bois went to Baraboo.

Life, this had seemed so simple, had grown very complicated for Sidney. There was her mother to break the news to, and Joe. Harriet would approve, she felt; but these others! To assure Anna that she must manage alone for three years, in order to be happy and comfortable afterwards—that was hard enough. But to tell Joe that she was planning a future without him, to destroy the light in his blue eyes—that hurt.

After all, she told K. first. One Friday evening, coming home late as usual, he found her on the doorstep, and Joe gone. She moved over hospitably. The moon had waxed and waned, and the Street was dark. The colored man who drove Doctor Ed in the old buggy on his daily rounds had brought out the hose and sprinkled the street. Within this zone of freshness, of wet asphalt and dripping gutters, Sidney sat, cold and silent.

"Please sit down. It is cool now. My idea of luxury is to have the Street sprinkled on a hot night."

K. disposed of his long legs on the steps. He was trying to fit his own ideas of luxury to a garden hose and a city street.

"I'm afraid you're working too hard."

"I do a minimum of labor for a minimum of wage."

"But you work at night, don't you?"

K. was natively honest. He hesitated. Then:

"No, Miss Page."

"But you go out every evening?"

Suddenly the truth burst on her.

"Oh, dear!" she said. "I do believe—why, how silly of you!"

K. was most uncomfortable.

"Really, I like it," he protested. "I hang over a desk all day, and in the evening I want to walk. I rumble around the park and see lovers on benches—it's rather thrilling."

Quite suddenly Sidney laughed.

"How very nice you are!" she said—almost how absurd! Don't you know that, if you insist on walking the streets and parks at night because Joe Drimmond is here, I shall have to tell him not to come?"

"This did not follow, to K's mind. They had rather a heated argument over it, and became much better acquainted."

"If I were engaged to him," Sidney ended, her cheeks very pink. "I might understand. But, as I am not—"

"Ah!" said K., a trifle unsteadily. "So you are not?"

Only a week—and love was one of the things he had to give up, with others. Not, of course, that he was to love with Sidney then. But he had been desperately lonely, and, for all her practical clearheadedness, she was so softly and appealingly feminine. By way of keeping his head, he talked suddenly and earnestly of Mrs. McKee, and food, and Tiltie, and of Mr. Wagner and the pencil pad.

"It's like a game," he said. "We disagree on everything, especially Mexican. If you ever tried to spell those Mexican names—"

"Why did you think I was engaged?" she insisted.

Now, in K's way of life—that walk of life where there are no toothpicks— young girls did not receive the attention of one young man to the exclusion of others unless they were engaged. But he could hardly say that.

"Why Did You Think I Was Engaged?" She insisted.

"Oh, I don't know. Those things get in the air."

"It's Johnny Rosenfeld," said Sidney, with decision. "It's horrible. The way things get about. Because Joe sent me a box of roses— As a matter of fact, I'm not engaged, or going to be, Mr. Le Moyne. I'm going into a hospital to be a nurse."

Le Moyne said nothing. For just a moment he closed his eyes. A man is in rather a bad way when, every time he closes his eyes, he sees the same thing, especially if it is rather terrible. When it gets to a point where he lies awake at night and reads, for fear of closing them—

"You're too young, aren't you?"

"Doctor Ed—one of the Wilsons across the street—is going to help me about that. His brother Max is a big surgeon there. I expect you've heard of him. We're very proud of him in the Street."

Lucky for K. Le Moyne that the moon no longer shone on the low, gray doorstep, that Sidney's mind had traveled far away to shining floors and rows of white beds. "Life—in the raw," Doctor Ed had said that other afternoon. Closer to her than the hospital was life in the raw that night.

So, even here, on this quiet street in this distant city, there was to be no peace. Max Wilson just across the way! It—it was ironic. Was there no place where a man could lose himself? He would have to move on again, of course.

But that, it seemed, was just what he could not do. For:

"I want to ask you something, and I hope you'll be quite frank," said Sidney.

"Anything that I can do—"

"It's this. If you are comfortable, and—like the room and all that, I wish you'd stay." She hurried on: "If I could feel that mother had a dependable person like you in the house, it would be all easier."

Dependable! That stung.

"But—forgive me asking; I'm really interested—can your mother manage? You'll get practically no money during your training."

"I've thought of that. A friend of mine, Christine Lorenz, is going to be married. Her people are wealthy, but she'll have nothing but what Palmer makes. She'd like to have the parlor and sitting room behind. They wouldn't interfere with you at all," she added hastily. "Christine's father would build a little balcony on the side for them, a sort of porch, and they'd sit there in the evenings."

Behind Sidney's carefully practical tone the man read appeal. Never before had he realized how narrow the girl's world had been. The Street, with but one dimension bounded it! In her perplexity she was appealing to him who was practically a stranger.

And he knew then that he must do the thing she asked. He, who had fled so long, could roam no more. Here on the Street, with its menace just across, he must live, that she might work. In his world men had worked that women might live in certain places, certain ways. This girl was going out to earn her living, and he would stay to make it possible. But no hint of all this was in his voice.

"I shall stay, of course," he said gravely. "I—this is the nearest thing to home that I've known for a long time. I want you to know that."

"You are very good to me," said Sidney.

When she rose, K. Le Moyne sprang to his feet.

Anna had noticed that he always rose when she entered his room—with fresh towels on Katie's day out, for instance—and she liked him for it. Years ago the men she had known had shown this courtesy to their women; but the Street regarded such things as affectation.

"I wonder if you would do me another favor? I'm afraid you'll take to avoiding me, if I keep on."

"I don't think you need fear that."

"This stupid story about Joe Drimmond—I'm not saying I'll never marry him, but I'm certainly not engaged. Now and then, when you are taking your evening walks, if you would ask me to walk with you—"

K. looked rather dazed.

"I can't imagine anything pleasant; but I wish you'd explain just how—"

Sidney smiled at him. As he stood on the lowest step their eyes were almost level.

"If I walk with you they'll know I'm not engaged to Joe," she said, with engaging directness.

The house was quiet. He waited in the lower hall until she had reached the top of the staircase. For some curious reason, in the time to come, that was the way Sidney always remembered K. Le Moyne—standing in the little hall, one hand upstretched to shut off the gas overhead, and his eyes on hers above.

"Good night," said K. Le Moyne. And all the things he had put out of his life were in his voice.

CHAPTER IV.

On the morning after Sidney had invited K. Le Moyne to take her to walk, Max Wilson came down to breakfast rather late. Doctor Ed had breakfasted an hour before, and had already attended, with much profanity on the part of the patient, to a bolt on the back of Mr. Rosenfeld's neck.

"Better change your laundry," cheerfully advised Doctor Ed, cutting a strip of adhesive plaster. "Your neck's irritated from your white collars."

Rosenfeld eyed him suspiciously, but, possessing a sense of humor also, he grinned.

"It ain't my everyday things that bother me," he replied. "It's my blankety-blank dress suit. But if a man wants to be tony—"

Mr. Rosenfeld buttoned up the blue flannel shirt which, with a pair of Doctor Ed's cast-off trousers, was his only wear, and fished in his pocket.

"How much, Doc?"

"Two dollars," said Doctor Ed briskly.

"Holy cats! For one jab of a knife! My old woman works a day and a half for two dollars."

"I guess it's worth two dollars to you to be able to sleep on your back."

He was imperturbably straightening his small glass table. He knew Rosenfeld. "If you don't like my price, I'll lend you the knife next time, and you can let your wife attend to you."

Rosenfeld drew out a silver dollar, and followed it reluctantly with a lump and defunct dollar bill.

"There's times," he said, "when, if you'd put me and the missus and a knife in the same room, you wouldn't have much left but the knife."

Doctor Ed waited until he had made his stiff-necked exit. Then he took the two dollars, and, putting the money into an envelope, indorsed it in his illegible hand. He heard his brother's step on the stairs, and Doctor Ed made haste to put away the last vestige of his little operation. Ed's lapses from surgical cleanliness were a sore trial to the younger man, fresh from the clinics of Europe. In his downtown office, to which he would presently make his leisurely progress, he wore a white coat, and sterilized things of which Doctor Ed did not even know the names.

Max paused at the office door.

"At it already," he said. "Or have you been to bed?"

"It's after nine," protested Ed mildly. "If I don't start early, I never get through."

Max yawned.

"Better come with me," he said. "I'll things go on as they've been doing. I'll have to have an assistant. I'd rather have you than anybody, of course."

He put his little surgeon's hand on his brother's shoulder. "Where would I be if it hadn't been for you? All the fellows know what you've done."

In spite of himself, Ed winced. It was one thing to work hard that there might be one success instead of two half successes. It was a different thing to advertise one's inferiority to the world. His sphere of the Street and the neighborhood was his own. To give it all up and become his younger brother's assistant—even if it meant, as it would, better hours and more money—would be to submerge his identity. He could not bring himself to do it.

ENGLISH SALOONKEEPERS FEARFUL OF PROHIBITION SEEK LAW'S ENFORCEMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Dec. 12.—The "lid" is being tilted so often by saloonkeepers in England that the liquor dealers themselves, fearful this continued winking at the closing time may advance the interests of prohibition, have launched a movement for a more rigid enforcement of the law.

It is proposed that any violations of the regulations will result in the suspension of the license until the end of the war. Another proposal is that a second violation of the law be punished by imprisonment, and that the offender be barred from further employment in the liquor trade.

In Birmingham the liquor interests have organized a vigilant police service of their own to see that the law is not violated.

FORTY MILLION DOLLARS INTO ITALY'S TREASURY FROM ITS WAR TAXES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Rome, Dec. 12.—Italy's new war taxes, to be applied beginning next June, are expected to bring upwards of forty million dollars. The heaviest tax, apparently, is intended to fall on manufacturers of war supplies, to the extent of 50 per cent on profits earned over 20 per cent of invested capital. An additional tax of three-tenths of one per cent is levied on the foreign countries doing business in Italy.

Another heavy tax falls on property owners. A direct tax of 5 per cent monthly is to be paid by owners of apartment and tenement houses, or is imposed on all soldiers and officers who, though mobilized, do not form part of the active fighting troops, and another tax is imposed on men who perform no military duty because of ill-health or other reasons.

RUSS IVOSCHIK PASSES: WOMEN TAKE HIS PLACE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Petrograd, Dec. 12.—The day following the granting of permission to women to drive cars and vans, a large number of wives and sisters of horse owners appeared as drivers. The traditional Russian "ivoschik" with long beard and long overcoat, in separate marks of his dignity, threatens to become a thing of the past.

MORE MILK NEEDED BY LOCAL CONCERNS

Janesville Fast Becoming Center of the Dairy Industry of Southwestern Wisconsin.

That Janesville is destined to become a milk market of considerable proportions seems to be indicated by the various outlets for milk which the city is fast developing.

Matters pertaining to the milk situation and the effort that is being made to point out to milk producers generally the desirability of hauling milk to Janesville were discussed at the Commercial club directors' meeting yesterday and the club will do all it can to assist the Milk Producers' association to enlarge the scope of the association's work.

At the present time some 70,000 pounds of milk per day additional could be hauled to Janesville if it could be procured, and there is little doubt but that within a comparatively short time, a large share of the milk will be secured for this market as fast as the producers can add to their herds.

The club will help the association finance the expense of locating the new cheese factory and will continue to assist in developing the market in Janesville.

It is interesting to note that Janesville has a number of concerns using large quantities of milk, all of them paying the milk producers' scale and that most of them could use considerable more milk than they are receiving at the present time.

The residents of Janesville perhaps do not realize the amount of milk business that is being transacted in Janesville at the present time. The Janesville Pure Milk company are large users of milk, the Shurtzoff company are heavy buyers, the Bower City Creamery company are large shippers, and the Leaf River Creamery company, the new concern, are developing very fast. In fact, they have orders, which if filled, would require 70,000 pounds of milk per day additional to what they are receiving. Aside from these are a number of smaller distributors who handle large quantities of milk. The addition of herds to the milk districts of this community will mean much to the wealth of the entire county and the development of the industry will be watched with keen interest.

The program for the civic dedication exercises Thursday evening, the fourteenth, has been arranged for and it is the desire of the Commercial club that the public generally understand that it is their meeting and the women are invited especially. Mr. Witten, who comes from Trenton, Mo., to talk on that evening, will give his audience something that is worth listening to.

A year's subscription to the Gazette is an every-day remembrance—an ideal gift.

DO YOU KNOW

That heating your gasoline gives you a little run and a lot of carbon for your money?
That gasoline begins to boil at about 90 and finishes at about 400. That no heater has that range and is therefore wrong in principle. That the Manning carburetor works on an entirely different principle and uses no heater.
The farm engine is successful and reliable without a heater or even a carburetor. Why should not your auto do better? We can make it.

FOGARTY ORGANIZES ROCKFORD TOSSERS

Former Fend du Lac Player and One Who is Always "Rode" Here, Has Fast Aggregation.

Fogarty, Murphy and Garrity, well known in Janesville for their basketball ability, are the cornerstones of a newly organized Rockford team which no doubt will be signed up by Manager George Caldwell for a game at the auditorium with the Lakota Club on the 14th. In the opening game on the Rockford team's schedule, Saturday night, they defeated the Ingersoll Milling Machine company five by a score of 49 to 15.

Fogarty and Murphy are playing the forwards, with Garrity and a lad named Welsh at guards. Connell, former Beloit high school star, is holding down the pivot position.

A year's subscription to the Gazette is an every-day remembrance—an ideal gift.

BADGER'S DEFENSE MUST BE IMPROVED

Team Has Yet to Develop Guarding Game—Beloit's Alm Poor, Only Reason for Low Score.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 12.—Wednesday evening the University of Wisconsin basketball team will meet Ripon in their second contest of the year. Ripon is rated as having one of the strongest teams in its history and there is no doubt but that they will give Wisconsin a better game than Beloit.

Wisconsin showed a wonderful offense and a fair defense against the Line City team. The work of Lewis at forward who caged ten baskets proved that he is going at top speed this year and will continue to be the most feared man in the conference. McIntosh, former Edgerton high school star, played at forward throughout the game and will prove a fitting man to fill the shoes left vacant by Captain Hass. McIntosh has plenty of height and speed but is weak on shooting baskets. With these two at forward in the first semester, Dr. McConnell will have two of the tallest forwards in the conference.

The main weakness of the Badgers is their defensive playing. It is not the fault of the guards, but the failure of the entire team to play a defensive game. Beloit towards the close of the second half of the game began to shoot at the basket consistently but because of their inaccuracy they were unable to score more than eleven points while Dr. McConnell's men totaled fifty-eight. Olsen, a veteran of two years, is a native at running guard with Carlson at the other place. Carlson while playing the standing position against Beloit scored six baskets while Olsen counted out times. McConnell, Fend and Pond also broke into the game and show promise.

The same team which opened the season with Beloit will face Ripon on Wednesday.

McConnell, Carlson and Olsen at guards and Hemming at center.

MORRIS MILLER

Cy Seymour, who was one of the best southpaws in the National league when he pitched for the Giants and later became champion batter when he played the outfield, expects to get a job as manager in the New York State league next season. Seymour recently stated that he had received offers from two clubs, and that he expected to sign a contract with one of them before January 1.

Pitcher Oscar Horstman, the Los Angeles pitcher secured by the St. Louis Cardinals from Los Angeles for next year, ranked No. 32 in percentage of games won in the league and that of a team that won the pennant, but in effectiveness he shows better, his mark being 2.57 earned runs allowed to the game, a better percentage by the way than that of Allan Sethoron, the Portland star who is recalled by the Browns.

Word from Larry Doyle, down in Jacksonville, Fla., is that he has thrown away his crutches and is walking around on the ankle he broke as good as ever. Doyle, who has had a long siege of it, but it is just as well that he took his time about letting the ankle mend. He is one of a number of players who are wintering at Jacksonville.

They are making a continued story of the managerial situation with the Chicago Cubs. The latest chapter is that it blows cold for Tinker again. He was to have been signed up two weeks ago, but some of the stockholders in the club got to thinking it over and asked President Freght to hold off. It may be just a plan to keep alive interest in baseball in Chicago until spring.

Curtis Walker, outfielder for the Southwestern University team at Georgetown, Tex., last year, has announced that he has agreed to play with the Philadelphia American league team this coming season.

Report from Richmond has it that Manager Billy Smith of the Virginians may give Ezra Mickin a job in his infield next season. Mickin after his injury while with the Louisville team failed to come back and wound up in the little Ohio State league, but he now believes he is all right again and ready for another whirl at Class AA ball.

Club owners and managers seem to be mercurial as ever regarding training camps. The Pittsburgh club abandons Hot Springs and goes to Columbus, Ga., for training, a location tried and abandoned by at least two other clubs in the past few years. Whereupon the Brooklyn club, which has trained its team at various points in Georgia and then in Florida, immediately decides to set up upon Hot Springs, vacated by the Pirates.

Hack Spencer, returning to San Francisco after his grand finish in the American league, has been said to be quoted as of the opinion that the league now is not as fast as it was when he was in it before, six or eight years ago. I may be true and, not casting any aspersions on the league, I must be true, else he could not have staged the remarkable comeback he did. But it is ungracious of him to advertise the fact.

Nap Rucker himself asked the Brooklyn club to release him, saying he knew he was done as a pitcher. President Ebbets told the famous southpaw he could have his release, but that in consideration of it he would be compelled each summer to visit various cities of the south and endeavor to find another tucker for the Brooklyn club—such visits to be made with all expenses paid and salary in full from the club. Greedy, heartless magnate!

President Barrows has come out strongly in favor of the American Association's suggestion that the international and association play in says he will advise his club owners to agree to the management. His recommendation will be that the season start April 16 and close August 5, with 112 games played. Then the inter-league round of 48 games would be played, each club of the two leagues playing three-game series.

Eddie Collins is not the only player on the White Sox to boast of an addition to the family. A son was born to Fred McMullin and wife in Los Angeles one day recently.

Pittsburgh surely holds honors in one respect for 1916, and perhaps for all time—the number of men who tried their hands at different infield positions. During the past season (besides men who played just a few games and didn't break into the official averages) Callahan tried three first basemen—Johnston, Hinchman, and Wagner; no less than seven second basemen—Knabe, Bigbee, Baird, Viox, McCarthy, Farmer and Schultz; three third basemen—Baird, Schultz and Warner; and three shortstops—Wagner, McCarthy and Smith. Carey, Costello, Harner, Hinchman, Baird, Warner and Bigbee were later in the outfield. No wonder Callahan could not get a winning team together.

Jap Barbeau, according to reports from Milwaukee, will not be seen on the ball field again unless called in to quell a riot. He has secured a place as deputy sheriff in Milwaukee and will wear brass buttons and a star instead of the monkey suit.

Jesse Burkett can't keep out of baseball. After quitting the Eastern league he secured a position in a Worcester brass factory and announced he was done with the game. And the first thing they did was to make him manager and coach of the shop baseball team.

Manager John McGraw not only wants the National league to raise its player limit to twenty-five men but he also wants the ban taken off starting spring training before March 1. He says it is necessary for the success of the Giants that they get started by the middle of February.

Ralph (Hap) Myers, ex-Boston Brave, ex-International league, ex-Fed, and so forth is reported as being accused of having a hand in a diamond robbery, though on his behalf it is claimed he is only a sort of innocent bystander. Two other men were connected with Myers in the trouble.

So confident is President Jack Holland of the St. Joseph Drummers of better things for next year that he has decided to take his ball team south on a training trip in the spring. A point in Oklahoma probably will be chosen and Holland expects to arrange for spring games with other teams that will be working out in that section.

The Louisville American Association club had planned to train its ball team at Columbus, Ga., but now that the Pittsburgh Pirates have secured that camp the Colonels must go elsewhere. President Walther and manager Clymer will decide on a training spot following the Association meeting. It probably will be in southern Georgia.

Boston's restiveness under the delay of Messrs. Frazee and Ward to appear in the Hub and get acquainted does not bode well for their success and it behooves them to get busy cultivating acquaintanceship. It seems a pity that the Bostonese, who seemed so ready to give them a kind reception, should have been denied the opportunity so long.

The cause of temperance was eloquently promoted in the official averages of the Pacific Coast league players, for it was found that Coffey of San Francisco wound up with a mark of .223 and Beer of Oakland hit only .045.

The tip is out in Chicago that Charley Weeghman hopes to unload some of his athletes on the Reds. Charles loses. One club with which Cincinnati will transact very little business is Chicago. Not that the two clubs are not friendly, but because any player who is obtained from the Cubs would want a barrel of money. The Cubs are loaded to the decks with high-priced players—several of them—and nearly all of these young men have contracts that call for double their present value. Some magnates who need two or three men, irrespective of cost, may buy the extra Cubs, but the Cincinnati club can get along all right without any of them.

Harry Frazee, chief purchaser of the Red Sox, has quite a sense of humor. He says in a letter to a Cincinnati friend: "I have learned two interesting facts since I bought the Boston club—that actors never forget an old friend, and that they are all base ball fans of the most enthusiastic character. Evidence thereof, every actor I ever knew informed me that he is my pal, and has also asked me for a season ticket."

ABE MARTIN

There's too many folks drivin' autos that haint got sense enough t' crank a ice cream freezer. Stew Nugent, who is visitin' his mother till times git worse, says he believes he'd prefer a submarine t' a box-car if it wuzn't fer icebergs.

Long Tom Hughes, for many years a successful pitcher in the American league, who for the past three years has more than held his own in the Pacific Coast league, has quite baseball. Hughes is now a member of the Salt Lake City detective force, having been appointed by the mayor of the city. Hughes is confident that he will make good in his new field.

GINGLES' JINGLES

'TIS EVER THUS. I hunched myself to the tip that I got from a friend upon the way, and I said to myself I believe he is right, that a snip is in order to day; my bushy gray locks should be trimmed up I know, be shown in a way to improve, be cut up to date, showing modernized lines, showing that I have sopped from the groove. So I sashayed right over and slipped in a chair, told the barber to give me a trim, as to how he should do it, I would not dictate, the manner was all up to him. And now I am sorry, I'm mournfully sad, my cupola sure is a fright, the barber removed nearly all trace of hair, my dome to behold is a sight. My wife says now that I look like a boob, my bulldog eyes me with a growl, I'm strange to my neighbors, my kiddo says, "Dad, with laughter at thee I could howl." Oh, why should the snip send get all but our scalp, when snipping the hair from our pate, and make us resemble a funny cartoon, a something they all give the Grimy Gyle gate.
